LARGEST CIRCULATION IN THE STATE.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN THE CITY.

THE LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the Postoffice at the end of each week is published officially in THE DAILY NEWS every Friday morning.

News Summary.

The State Senate of Connecticut ratified the Constitutional Amendment on the evening of the 25th.

A large boat which had just arrived in Richmond from Lynchburg sunk in the canal at the landing just below the Seventh-street bridge, and the whole cargo has to be fished out.

The State election in Texas took place on Monday. It is generally supposed that the Conservative ticket—JAMES THROCKMORTON for Governor—will be elected by a large majority. The new constitution, placing freedom on an equality with whites before the law, was also to be voted upon.

The Chicago Journal says Rev. Mr. GRINNELL, M. C., from Iowa, would have been renominated if the news of the assault upon him by General ROSSAU had reached home before the Convention was held. Whereupon, says the Rochester Express (Republican): "If a canon would secure a renomination General ROSSAU's efforts would be in great demand among anxious members of Congress."

Twenty-eight Old School Presbyterian ministers, and thirty-one ruling elders of Missouri and other States, have issued an address to the Presbyterian people, protesting against the action of the late General Assembly, and calling a Conference of all members and elders who agree with them to meet at St. Louis on the 15th of August to debate on the present state of affairs in the church.

In 1864-65 the numerical strength of the French army was 498,465 men, amongst whom there were: Volunteers, 16,853; re-engaged men (after discharge) originally drawn in conscription, 18,240; re-engaged, before liberation, 105,484; making a total of 139,577 men absolutely serving as volunteers in the ranks—about thirty-four per cent. of the whole army. The following were the crimes and punishments in the French army during the same year: Charged with crime, 5703; abandoned, 711; tried, 4992; convicted, 3995; acquitted, 1007.

Recent Mexican advices are to the effect that the hopes of the Confederate emigrants to Mexico are at an end. The Cardova colony, founded by Gen. STERLING PRICE and Gov. HARRIS, has been broken up, the houses burnt and crops destroyed by guerrillas of the Liberal party, and the Confederates, about one hundred in number, forced to flee for safety to the City of Cardova. The Liberals are speculating on the downfall of MAXIMILIAN and dreaming of annexation with the United States.

From the Richmond Dispatch of Thursday we learn that the Freedmen's Bureau has organized a plan for providing work and homes in the Northern States for unemployed and destitute freedmen on the Virginia peninsula, where, in the single district about Fortress Monroe, the Government is obliged to issue monthly sixty thousand rations. On Saturday quite a number of colored men and women were sent to Massachusetts, where homes have already been secured.

The Legislature of Kentucky, at its last session, enacted a law requiring all coffee-house keepers to give bonds in the county court of their respective counties in the sum of four hundred dollars not to sell liquor to minors or to keep a disorderly house. This law has not, it seems, been complied with by a single coffee-house keeper in Covington, and the consequence is that every such person in the city was indicted by the grand jury last Friday.

The New York Herald of Tuesday says: "It was reported yesterday that two prominent members of the Union Club of this city had left town for the purpose of engaging in a deadly conflict according to the thirty-nine articles of the Southern code of honor. The affair has been kept a profound secret, and no more is known than that the two reported principals are absent from their places of business and homes." Whereupon, the Richmond Times says: "It will turn out, we predict, that these men have not gone to fight any duel, but have run off with somebody's money."

The first receipt here, says the Baltimore Sun of the 27th, of new crop this season was offered and sold to-day on "Change. It was comprised of one hundred bushels prime white, the grain being plump and of good color, raised near Hampton, Elizabeth City county, Virginia, consigned by Mr. GEORGE F. ANDERSON to Messrs. Cox & Brown, and was purchased at three dollars and eighty cents per bushel by Messrs. WALKER, DORSEY & Co., city millers, for their Monitor and Silver Spring Family brands. Last year the first receipt of new crop was also sold by Messrs. Cox & Brown, but it was in the market five days earlier than the above, and only brought two dollars and fifty cents per bushel.

A most horrible death from snake bite occurred in lower Hanover county, Va., on Saturday last. While Mr. JEREMIAH LOGAN was passing through his oat field he suddenly trod on a copperhead snake, and in an instant its fangs were embedded in his right leg, causing, at the time, only a slight tingling pain. The snake then slid out of sight, while Mr. LOGAN, after a brief search, proceeded about his out-door labors. Nothing serious was apprehended in consequence of the bite till after the lapse of half an hour or three-quarters, when, the pain becoming annoying, he deemed it best to go to his residence and apply some remedy. The wound began rapidly to swell and spread, till the family sent for a physician. Mr. LOGAN's condition continued to get worse until the close of the day (about six hours after he was bitten), when he became wild and delirious, and spasms after spasms ensued, lasting till late in the night, when he died in the most agonizing manner.

We find in the Pensacola Observer, of the 21st inst., an order from Major-General FOSTER re-establishing martial law in the counties of Santa Rosa, Escambia, Levy, Madison and Alachua, which has been rendered necessary, says the Commanding General, by the occurrence of murders and other crimes committed upon the persons of loyal citizens and the failure of the civil authorities to bring the criminals to justice. The Observer speaks of it as an event so bold and unexpected that it could scarcely realize its reality. It deprecates the measure in strong terms as wholly unnecessary, and says that so far from the commission of crime being unusually great in the counties named, as alleged in the order of General FOSTER, it had been actually less, and expresses the opinion that the military authorities had been deceived by the misrepresentations of evil disposed persons.

CHARLESTON.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 30, 1866.

THE UNION CONVENTION.

It has long been evident to the most careless as well as to the most scrutinizing observer of the political affairs of this country, that the Republic of the United States is ruled by a factious minority, regardless of the public weal,—not satisfied with the profits of power, but determined to force their opinion upon the opposing majority in the most trifling affairs, as well as in matters of the gravest import. How this has come to pass, in a Government expressly designed to make the will of the people the law of the land, can only be thoroughly understood after a careful study of the history of the nation from its birth, and more particularly for the last five years, in which "old things have passed away and all things have become new." Suffice it for us to know that such is the case, that there is a great and vital evil which calls for a certain and speedy cure.

The question of what that remedy shall be, and how it shall be obtained, has exercised the minds of the most prominent men in the country for some time past. ANDREW JOHNSON, who, impelled by a keen sense of justice and right, and a hardy honesty of purpose, has so far, single-handed and alone, pursued the tide of Radical fury and oppression; but who, without the active support of a sympathizing but heretofore silent majority, must be swept away before the raging torrent, is prevented, by his official position, from submitting the cause of the Union to the people, and calling upon them to rally to his assistance.

The wily SEWARD, whose skill has guided the helm of State through unparalleled storms to a haven of comparative security, is likewise prevented, by his intimate official connection with the President, from taking an open part in political proceedings for the support of his policy. There are, however, others not quite so high in official position, but distinguished for their patriotism and intelligence, and acknowledged friends of Mr. JOHNSON and Mr. SEWARD, who have taken the initiative in this great work of resistance to oppression, and who have indicated a plan for the organization of a mighty party, composed of the various elements of opposition throughout the country, and devoted to the reconstruction of the Union on the basis of the Constitution and the laws.

In pursuance of the said plan the Executive Committee of the National Union Club, and certain distinguished Members of Congress, have called a Convention, to be held in Philadelphia, on the 14th of August next,—to be composed of delegates from all the States, elected by the supporters of the Administration; for the purpose of "holding counsel together on the state of the Union, and taking measures to avert possible dangers from the same." This call has excited much attention in political circles throughout the country, and must be regarded as possessing great significance. Coming from the quarter it does it can mean nothing less than that the President, Mr. SEWARD and the other great leaders of the conservative element of the country have determined to make a systematic effort to overcome the power of the Radicals, and have agreed upon this Convention as the first step in the mighty contest which must ensue.

The treatment of the Southern States by the Radical majority in Congress, since their return to the fold of the Union, has been such as to dishearten their citizens and almost entirely destroy among them all interest in the political affairs of the nation. This result was legitimate, and as regards any move of the Radicals it is not worth while for us, the people of the South, to concern ourselves. On the other hand, however, when the conservative masses of the North, who show themselves disposed to be our friends, invite us to a Convention where we may consult together concerning the common danger, and the plan of proceedings to be adopted against the common enemy,—it behooves us to enter heart and soul into the movement, and to show that we will use our utmost efforts and endeavors to escape the galling bondage in which we are held, and resume once more the exercise of the rights and privileges, properly appertaining to the citizenship of a great Republic.

Even if it should be argued that our influence in the Convention for any positive purpose, i. e. for the accomplishment of any measure of redress,—would be as nothing; still for a negative purpose, to prevent a misrepresentation of our feelings and intentions, and the doing of things in our name which we do not approve, the presence of properly chosen representatives would be of the utmost importance. The people of the South, in spite of the experience of the war, are but imperfectly understood by their fellow-citizens of the North, and in this respect the propriety of the selection of truly representative public men from the South, as delegates to the Philadelphia Convention, must force itself upon the understanding of every man versed in political manoeuvres, who has the future welfare of the South at heart.

In this great move then for the support of the President's policy and the reconstruction of the Union on liberal and constitutional principles, it is the duty of the South to take an earnest and active part. The whole South, however, will not move simultaneously in this matter, any more than they did in the great act of secession. Now, as then, a leader is needed. What State can take the initiative with a better grace than South Carolina? In what community could the first public meeting be held with more propriety than in Charleston? South Carolina was foremost in secession, and sacrificed all in fidelity to the cause. In Charleston the first act of the great tragedy was performed. Let South Carolina then be the first to move in the great cause of a restored Union, and here in Charleston, where was heard the first war-whoop, let us show that we have buried the tomahawk with our dead. Let us have a great public meeting of the electors of this Congressional District, appoint worthy men as delegates to the Philadelphia Convention, and invite the other Congressional Districts of the State and of the South to do likewise.
